

The Lucas Oil Golf Course is located 38 miles west of Louisville, KY. During the 1930's, English was a thriving town nestled in the rolling hills and ridges of southern Indiana. Restaurants, hotels, and 1000 residents called English home. Today, Lucas Oil Golf Course is home to an 18-hole championship golf course.

Over the years, the town of English was relocated to higher ground. The fertile valley, adjoining ridge tops and remaining streets and bridges created the perfect setting for a championship golf course. The unique challenge of transforming an abandoned town into a championship golf course attracted award winning golf course architect, Dr. Michael Hurdzan.

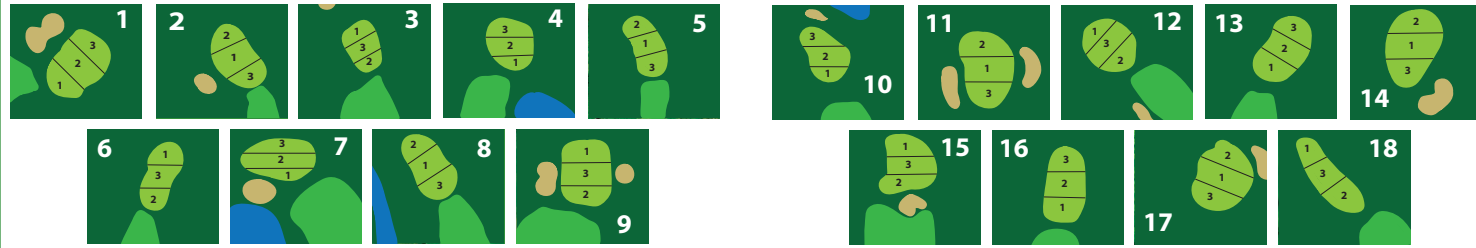

The Lucas Oil Golf Course is routed to take advantage of dramatic drops in elevation and unique features in and around the former town of English.
